

What do the Animals Really Think

Poem

<ul style="list-style-type: none">✧ Discuss individuals and organisations working to save and protect animals: the cruelty of some people, the kindness of some. There are beautiful sanctuaries and zoos that take very good care of animals and birds.✧ Make groups of four and ask them to discuss why animal welfare is important. Discuss how we can help animals that are abandoned, injured, neglected, treated cruelly, etc.✧ Apart from the NGOs mentioned, there are several others like Let's Live Together, Bangalore; Visakha Society for Protection and Care for Animals [VSPCA], Visakhapatnam, Andhra Pradesh; The Blue Cross of India, Chennai; The Modern Mowgli, Delhi and Haryana. Also, there are hundreds of gaushalas, wildlife and bird sanctuaries, etc. There are organisations like the World Wildlife Fund, Bombay Natural History Society, etc.	Get Going!
<ul style="list-style-type: none">✧ Patricia Walter is a poet and an artist. In this poem, she talks about how animals see our world and us. We human beings think we are the greatest thing created in this Universe. But when we see ourselves from the point of view of animals, we realise we are not all that great. The poem is written in eleven unrhymed couplets, asking questions which themselves contain the answers.✧ In the first couplet the poet states the focus of the poem: what is the real opinion that animals have about human beings and their modern ways?✧ Second couplet: A human being is so busy with his/her daily routine of tasks and job, that he/she has no time for enjoyment and is exhausted.✧ Third couplet: The animals wonder whether human beings have forgotten that they have been freely given the beauty and love of nature and all its creatures.✧ Fourth couplet: The poet again wonders what animals really think of man's life in today's world.✧ Fifth couplet: Most of our lives are spent indoors with man-made gadgets. So here the animals wonder whether man has forgotten the feel of the earth, the moist, fertile soil from which nature brings forth such rich fruits and harvests.	Read and Enjoy

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ✧ Sixth couplet: Animals wonder how human beings have forgotten about the flowers and wheat and other crops that humans have grown all through the ages. ✧ Seventh couplet: Animals notice that human beings do not care for the everyday life they had lived earlier, as there are other people and other equipment now to take care of fields. ✧ Eight couplet: The poet also wonders what animals feel about humans rushing around in vehicles. There was a time when animals helped them to travel, on horses, camels, elephants, donkeys, bullock carts, etc. There are still places where animals help man to travel, like sleds drawn by huskies, on the backs of yaks, camels and elephants, etc. But now this is rare. ✧ Ninth couplet: Man was healthier and happier when he walked and breathed fresh, clean air and looked at the bright blue sky above him. ✧ Tenth couplet: Finally, the poet draws attention to the change in man's character and attitude, which the animals have noticed. Man is not the happy, friendly warm-hearted creature that he was earlier. He has become a cold-hearted person, and his modern conduct reflects that coldness. ✧ Eleventh couplet: The poet's final comment is very strong. The animals are so happy that they are animals, and not human beings with their modern ways. ✧ This poem all through shows how shallow, cold-hearted and artificial man and his life have become. It is seen through the eyes of animals that have remained in touch with nature and its beauty.
