

4. To the Market

WORKSHEET 1

COMPREHENSION

Read the passage and answer the questions.

There was a sweets shop at the corner of Park Street. Mithu liked to go there in the evening, when he came back from the park where he played with his friends. The shop belonged to Jagan Uncle. He was a large man and was very kind to children. The shop had a counter with white and red and yellow and brown sweets inside it. On top of the counter were huge glass jars. There were coloured sweets inside the jars too. Some were wrapped in gold or silver paper. On one side of the shop, a cook was making samosas and jalebis in a large flat pan full of boiling oil. It all smelt very good. But Jagan Uncle did not let the children go near the pan and the fire. He gave Mithu one sweet every day and told him to be a good boy.

A. Answer the following questions.
