COMPREHENSION

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

Six year old Shubha sat at the table, swinging her legs and examining a sugar cube. She was sitting with her parents in Buggy's Restaurant, the first time she was eating out. And Daddy and Mummy had already told her several rules to follow.

'Don't run around.'

'Don't talk loudly.'

'Mustn't munch your food with your mouth open or talk with your mouth full.'

'Use the napkin, dear, not your sleeve!'

'Hold the fork with your left hand, and the knife with your right.'

'That's a soup spoon!'

'Daddy, how can you remember all this?' asked Shubha, looking at the army of spoons and forks and the different-sized glasses and plates on the table.

'You get used to it, Shubb,' said Daddy. 'Just keep doing what I say.'

'But what happens when I'm alone?' persisted Shubha. 'You can't always be there. You have to go to the office, don't you? How do I know what good behaviour is?'

'She's right, you know,' smiled Mummy.

There was a short silence and then Daddy smiled.

'Right! Just one rule,' he announced. 'Be considerate and kind. That's all! Everything else doesn't matter.'

And that's what Miss Shubha Ghare now teaches the students in her class, remembering Daddy's wise words.
