COMPREHENSION

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

The tiger is one of the most powerful and majestic animals in the world. It is the largest member of the cat family and is known for its strength speed, and sharp senses. Tigers have a beautiful coat of orange fur with black stripes, which helps them blend into their surroundings. Each tiger has a unique pattern of stripes, just like human fingerprints.

Tigers are found in different regions of Asia, including India, Bangladesh, Nepal, Bhutan, China, Russia and Southeast Asian countries like Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia. The most famous tiger species is the Bengal tiger, found mainly in India and Bangladesh. Other species include the Siberian tiger, found in Russia, and the Sumatran tiger, found in Indonesia. They live in forests, grasslands, and mangrove swamps.

Tigers are carnivores, which means they eat meat. They hunt animals like deer, wild boars and even smaller animals like rabbits. They are skilled hunters and can move very quietly while stalking their prey. Unlike most cats, tigers love water and are excellent swimmers. They often cool off in lakes or rivers during hot weather. Tigers are also very territorial and mark their areas with scent and scratch marks to warn other tigers to stay away.

Sadly, tigers are in danger because of hunting and the destruction of forests. Their numbers have decreased, and they are now an endangered species. Many countries, including India, have taken steps to protect them. Projects like 'Project Tiger' have helped to increase their population.

Tigers play an important role in nature by keeping the balance of the food chain. They help control the population of herbivores, which prevents overgrazing in forests. Protecting tigers is necessary to maintain a healthy environment. If we all work together, we can ensure that these magnificent creatures continue to roam freely in the wild.
